INTRODUCTION

Biography

Rodolphe Prager (pseudonym: A. Duret) was born in Berlin, Germany in 1918. In 1929 his parents emigrated to France because of the economic crisis. From 1931 till 1935 Rodolphe Prager was active in different French radical youth organizations.

In 1931 he became member of the Campeurs Rouges, where Roger Foirier made a big impression on the young Prager, and of Les Jeunesses Socialistes. In 1935 he became deeply influenced by the Trotskyist ideas of the Groupe Bolchevik-Léniniste of the Section Française de l'Internationale

Ouvrière (SFIO). He became member of the Comité Central des Jeunesses Socialistes Révolutionnaires (JSR) in 1936. In 1937 he left the JSR and joined the Parti Communiste Internationaliste (PCI), the party of Pierre Frank and Raymond Molinier. Prager was chosen in the central committee of the PCI and was cofounder of the Jeunesses Communistes Internationalistes (JCI). He became a collaborator of its periodical Le Jeune Bolchevik. In 1938 he became member of the new established Parti Socialiste Ouvrier et Paysan (PSOP) and was cofounder of the Jeunesses Socialistes Ouvriers et Paysans (JSOP), in which the JCI amalgamated. In 1938 he was naturalized as a French citizen. In 1939 he went to Belgium where he, together with George Vereeken, Raymond Molinier and Eduardo Mauricio published two declarations concerning the German-Soviet Pact and the declaration of the 2nd World War in La Correspondance Internationaliste under the pen name of Jung.

He became one of the correspondents of this periodical in spite of its prohibition by the Belgian authorities. Arrested in Brussels, but released after the capitulation of Brussels to the Germans he left Belgium and went to Paris again. There he established a clandestine group of militants, the group 'La Seule Voie', together with Roger Foirier and Jacques Grinblat. 'La Seule Voie' soon got the name Comité Communiste Internationaliste (CCI).

In 1943 he negotiated with Yvan Craipeau, Marcel Hic and Michel Raptis (Pablo) for a merger of the CCI with the Parti Ouvrier Internationaliste (POI) and got entrance to the European Secretariat of the IVth International for the CCI. From september 1943 he got a seat on behalf of the CCI in the European Secretariat. Prager was also one of the delegates of the CCI at the secret European conference, held in l'Oise. In the last year of the war he became member of the political bureau of the new established Parti Communiste Internationaliste (PCI). After the liberation he was active with the editing and publishing of La Vérité and Quatrième Internationale. Under great pressure of the French communist party he was arrested and condemned to three months in prison, because he had no permit of publication. The fact that he was already condemned by default for a three years term by a military court of justice in 1939, added to the loss of his French nationality in 1941, forced him to live as an illegal. Early in 1946 and being a representant of the colonial commission of the PCI he got in touch with Messali Hadj in Algeria and also with Vietnamese Trotskyist groups living in France.

From 1950 to 1952 he lived in Israel, where he worked in a kibbutz and where he married Louise Bonnet. In 1953 he got amnesty and in 1955 his French nationality was restored. From 1953 to 1959 he was member of the political bureau of the PCI.

He wrote articles about the Algerian war in La Vérité des Travailleurs under the name of Robert Leblond. He became also at the same time member of the Parti Socialiste Autonome and afterwards of the Parti Socialiste Unifié (PSU). In Tunisia where he stayed from 1959 till 1963, he worked in the tourist branch. There he had also intensive relations with Algerian comrades. Back in France he became again member of the political bureau of the PCI until 1969 and he was also elected as member of the control commission of the IVth International. At the same time he was member of the Comité Politique National du PSU from 1966 to 1969 and of the Bureau National du Comité Vietnam National.

After his exclusion from the PSU in 1969 he started to publish his Congrès de la Quatrième Internationale, consisting of 4 volumes:

Volume 1: Naissance de la IVe Internationale (1930-1940);

Volume 2: L'Internationale dans la guerre (1940-1946);

Volume 3: Bouleversements et crises de l'après guerre (1946-1950);

Volume 4: Menace de la troisième guerre mondiale et tournant politique (1950-1952).

He was also one of the contributors of Jean Maitron's Dictionnaire biographique du mouvement ouvrier français. Until 1978 he was member of the board of the Institut Léon Trotsky in Paris.

The papers

The papers of Rodolphe Prager arrived in 1996 at the IISH. The greatest part consists of files used for his magnum opus in 4 volumes: Congrès de la Quatrième Internationale. These files contain many photocopies, completed with some originals, which he had obtained or collected during his lifelong involvement in Trotskyism. The arrangement of the documents relating to organizations took place as much as possible according to the structure of these organizations. Periodicals and pamphlets have been transferred to the library of the IISH, except those which are part of a file. However, in the case of the original copies of the Bulletin Intérieur the decision has been taken to keep them in the files, because of their relationship with other documents and also because of annotations, sometimes written on them. Documents concerning persons have been arranged in mostly alphabetical series.

After their arrangement the papers have a size of 9.75 metres.
