From the oppressed students from Burma
Wat Thai, Wat Thanaran
Mea Set District, Tak Province,
September 29, 1988.

To the governor of Tak Province,

Dear Sir,

We are the group of oppressed students and civilians who fled from the Saw Maung military government and now taking the temporary asylum at Wat Thai, Wat Thanaran in Mea Set District of Tak Province.

We know that you kindly visit us and concern about our plights who now become the displaced persons and it is almost impossible for us to return to our country when thousands of our students and working people were killed, wounded and imprisoned from the recent war in the country.

You had set the date line for our group to leave the temple on Monday, October 5. At that moment, we still do not know where to go. Some rumors said that the authorities will force us to leave somewhere, which we still do not know.

Sir, all of us who have the signatures in the two separated place here are very worry, and the chief abbot of the temple and the deputy abbot are concerned with our problems and they said, by your permission, they will allow us to stay for a certain period as we now waiting for our student leaders who are expected to let us know what should we do in about two more weeks.

Sir, we should like you to have mercy upon us by giving the permission for us to stay in the temple for a certain period, and as soon as we hear from our student leaders, who will contact us soon, we will leave the temple immediately or will humbly follow your instruction.

Letter from the 'Oppressed Students from Burma' pleading with the Governor of Tak province, Thailand for compassion (September 29, 1988)

24. Burma Peace Foundation (Geneva)

Period: 1987-2007

Total Size: 18.85 m.

Consultation: Restricted

A new acquisition to add to our Burmese holdings: the collection of the Burma Peace Foundation. The Burma Peace Foundation (BPF) was formed in London in 1987 by David Arnott and U Rewata Dhamma, a Burmese Buddhist monk, initially to act as a mediating body between the generals in Rangoon and the non-Burman ethnic groups. Its first concrete activity, however, was to bring money, malaria medicine and moral support to the students and monks who had fled to the Thailand-Burma border in the wake of the suppression of 1988. From 1991 to 1996, it was based in New York where it acted as a conduit for human rights and other information on Burma from the monitors in the field to the UN and other actors and from 1996 to 2007 it carried out similar activities in Geneva. In 2001 BPF launched the Online Burma/Myanmar Library (OBL) (<http://www.burmalibrary.org>) which is now the Internet's largest single depository of online material on Burma/Myanmar, with over 15,000 full-text documents, including a number of unique archives. From 2005, BPF established an office in Mae Sot, Thailand, in parallel with the Geneva office, and in 2007 gave up the Geneva base in order to concentrate on activities in the region.

In the course of these 20 years, BPF/OBL has accumulated a paper and electronic archive dealing with a wide range of issues relating to Burma. A large proportion of the documents relate to multilateral, bilateral and transnational involvement with the country and include not only official documents (which may also be found elsewhere) but also working papers, different stages of draft resolutions etc. Access to the collection is restricted.

Küsters, Tom

Tom Küsters was born in Groesbeek in 1943. Although he died in this same town in 2008, he was deeply involved in the world outside the Netherlands throughout his active life. In the 1970s he participated in the Vietnam movement in Nijmegen and produced a series of posters on the subject. The Vietnam War intrigued him. He built a model landscape of Dien Bien Phoe, where French colonialism in Indochina collapsed. Armed with ordnance survey maps that now pertain to the archive corresponding with the model, he examined the situation on site. Küsters was also interested in the rise and murder of Lumumba. The work of art, featuring 120 portraits of people involved in this case, is part of the collection. Non-political work of Tom Küsters, who was also a skilled marathon runner, is now at the Valkhof Museum in Nijmegen. The IISH collection consists of the scale model and related documentation, screen prints and printed materials. See also: posters by Tom Küsters.

Pirnazar Diaspora Radio Archive

Collecting documents on the political and cultural activities of the Iranian diaspora has been one of the IISH enduring tasks. Following the Revolution of 1978-1982, some 2-4 millions Iranians left for Western Europe and North America creating a dynamic diaspora. In California, the Iranian diaspora gradually developed as one of the major ethnic groups. The Pirnazar Radio Archive includes a collection of audio materials extracted from Radio Iran based in Los Angeles during the period 1980-2005. It includes interviews with the political and cultural elite of the Iranian activists covering a variety of issues from memoirs to analysis of the political and cultural campaigns.

Collection of black-and-white photographs and negative prints from Ewald Vanvugt (Den Bosch, The Netherlands 1943), socially concerned writer and photographer. From 1963 Vanvugt published a series of novels, short stories and poems. Later on he also wrote books and articles on work ethic, slavery, opium traffic and colonial history. During the sixties, seventies and eighties he travelled among others through India, the United States of America, South-America, Indonesia and Persia. In 1983 during six months he lived on the Indonesian island Bali. At the end of the eighties he travelled through the Soviet Union. In 2003 he toured South-Africa and Namibia. About his adventures during his trips he wrote countless travel stories. During his travels Vanvugt extensively took photographs of social issues: this he called 'the wonder everyday world of beggars, pot smokers, drinkers, child labour, lepers, women's labour, transvestites and a lot more. Some photos were published in different Dutch magazines and papers, like Vrij Nederland, VPRO-gids and de Volkskrant.
